

What constitutes a Superyacht?

Superyachts/Megayachts range up to incredible sizes and there is no official starting size (LOA)
As volume of yachts continues to increase it could certainly be considered 100-120ft is a good starting point.

Let's see why the EkoKat Voyage 62w is being heralded the world's first 60ft superyacht.

Here are 2 yachts that could well be considered entry level superyachts and their key usable spaces v EkoKat

Firstly, these Sunseeker 100 and 120 monohull yachts are a very different category of vessel, and would not generally be compared in a line up with a 62ft luxury power catamaran.

However ask yourself: If you were sat on anchor or underway on the top deck flybridge of EkoKat, would you know or care what the length of the boat you were on was? You can only be in one place at one time. The same applies to the salon and most definitely applies to the EkoKat owners full beam (full boat width) master cabin with 180° panoramic views and private terrace - which is actually of Megayacht size.

Not only that but there is the practicality - you cannot just 'get on and go', drive yourself if you wish, cruise into idyllic bays and anchor or even drive up onto the beach. There are actually almost endless benefits to a boat the 62ft size of EkoKat.

Then of course there is the price. EkoKat costs usd 3 million, and the two Sunseekers usd 15 and usd 25 million respectively. For less space in areas used the most are the others really worth usd 12 and usd 22 EXTRA? Let alone 10-20x the annual cost to run!

EkoKat is the 1st and only yacht of its kind and size, that resultant from its attention to safety and redefining yacht layouts, has managed to deliver these Superyacht size (100-120ft) key usable spaces on board. It also boasts a myriad of Superyacht features too.

Quite simply put, a usd 3m, 62ft superyacht that rivals usd 15m and usd 25 giants - let alone anything in its 60ft category size!

Usable Space Comparison – Flybridge, Main Salon, and Master Suite

Another benefit of no side decks - One family/friends can occupy entire front half of the yacht including the lounge-on-the-Bow outside terrace, and other family/friends occupy the rear. The Flybridge for communal fun. EkoKat is perfect for long stays on board and as the ideal charter yacht.
